In the post box this week....

This week we have been thinking about what makes us sick and how we cope with it.

I can't really explain this but when I feel sick, I just go along with it and I eventually feel better.

I felt sick of life when my mum had cancer. All her hair fell out but now it has grown back but in a different colour. I remember what she looked like with no hair (she didn't look too good), although of course I still loved her.

I feel really alive now because I'm going on holiday on Friday till next Friday. There's going to be an indoor swimming pool (that's great news!)

Anonymous, Abbot, 4B

There are 2 types of sick, one is being physically sick and the other is feeling sick inside your head, like if you are worrying about something. You can stop being physically sick by taking medicine and resting. You can stop being sick inside your head by going to your happy place and thinking about nice things. It also helps, if you are worrying, to tell someone you trust.

Under the weather...!

What a half term, it went in a flash! I have to say I think the children could all use a break from school and I know the staff can. It's been a torturous week with the weather and the children have been so well behaved in class with the temperature so high.

We have now finished our recruiting and have made our last appointment. We have appointed Joanna Whitaker to work in Year 4 next year and we are looking forward to welcoming her in September. We have had a lot of staffing changes this term and we now have a settled team for September which is a great relief.

Our parent governor election concluded on Wednesday this week and I am please to announce that Sarah Gearon was elected as our new parent governor. I congratulate Sarah on winning the election and am looking forward to working with her after half term.

This week we have been thinking about feeling sick as Paul's adventure has reached Ephesus. Miracles are always a hard sell because they seem to defy all logic and understanding but I believe miracles happen and I know many of the children do. The children have been thinking about what makes them sick and how they cope with that. We had some interesting Thoughtful Times this week and as usual they ranged from the incredibly thought provoking to the minimalistic.

We have a lot of events coming up in the next half term and the biggest of those is the Summer Fair on Saturday 23rd June. I know the PSA could always use more helpers so if you are able to lend a hand, please contact the office. We also have our transition days and Day of Difference coming up and you will be receiving a letter after half term asking for help with transport and help with volunteering to run activities.

It only remains for me to wish you all a peaceful and relaxing half term and we shall see you when the children return to school on Monday 11th June 2012 at the normal time.

From the PSA....

PSA Summer Fair... Design our Poster ! For this year's Summer Fair we thought it would be a lovely idea to run a competition for QE children to design the poster.

The theme for the Fair is "A Flag Festival" to incorporate all the exciting events happening this year. There will be a 50p entry fee and the cut off point will be Monday 11th June. We will insert the fair details into your child's design, so only a picture design is required. Please send in your child's design (with their name and class on the back) via your child's class teacher at registration. Many thanks and good luck!
